Spotlight on Thomas Perry

Thomas Perry is well known for his mysteries and suspense novels. He frequently infuses sophisticated humor in his fast-paced works. He has won numerous awards, including an Edgar, the New York Times Notable Book, and was the "first recipient of the Gumshoe Award for best novel." Perry has a Ph.D. in English from the University of Rochester. The Boston Globe said, "Perry is the best suspense writer in the business," and Robert Parker said, "Thomas Perry is, quite simply, brilliant. . . "

Perry wrote to this editor right when we went to press last winter, so I asked his permission to publish his outstanding message to our readers in this winter's newsletter. Enjoy his special words!

"Greetings to the patrons of the Bloomington Public Library. I was in Chicago at the beginning of February to talk at the American Library Association meeting. That was also the day when the record-breaking snowstorm reached your area. Two nights later I went to a bookstore in the suburbs to do a book signing, and in order to reach the front door I had to crawl over a wall of accumulated ice and snow left there by the snowplows. After that visit I have a pretty clear picture of what your winter has been like. Hang on, wait the rest of the winter out, and use these last cold days before spring as opportunities to do a lot of reading.

Best wishes,
Thomas Perry"

Quote for the Day

A good novel tells us the truth about its hero; but a bad novel tells us the truth about its author.

—Gilbert K. Chesterton
